

Recalibrating the Law of Humans with the Laws of Nature:
Climate Change, Human Rights, and Intergenerational Justice

Appendix A
Background Papers

Appendix A Table of Contents

Background Paper No. 1A: Probable Climate Change Impacts: Harms and Benefits at a Continental to Sub-Continental Scale
by Sharon C. Benzoni & Jerald L. Schnoor
Executive Summary
Background Paper

Background Paper No. 1B: Probable Climate Change Consequences, Victims, and Beneficiaries
by Maureen F. McCue
Executive Summary
Background Paper

*Background Paper No. 2:
Climate Change and Intergenerational Justice: Foundational Reflections*
by Burns H. Weston

Background Paper No. 3: Native American Law
by N. Bruce Duthu

Background Paper No. 4: Extending Intergenerational Equity in Electricity Regulation to Account for Climate Change Effects
by Christina Switzer & Michael H. Dworkin

Background Paper No. 5: Subsidization of Non-Renewable Energy Resources in the United States
by Elizabeth Caitlin & Michael H. Dworkin

*Background Paper No. 6:
The Recognition of Intergenerational Ecological Rights and Duties in U.S. Law*
by Tracy L. Bach

*Background Paper No. 7:
The Recognition of Intergenerational Ecological Rights and Duties in Foreign Law*
by Tracy L. Bach

*Background Paper No. 8: International Environmental Law,
Climate Change, and Intergenerational Justice*
by Jonathan C. Carlson
Executive Summary
Background Paper

Background Paper No. 9: Climate Change and Human Rights
by Pamela Stephens
Executive Summary
Background Paper

Background Paper No. 10: International Trade Law
by David A. Wirth

Background Paper No. 11: Law for the Ecological Age
by Joseph H. Guth

Background Paper No. 12: Resolving the Paradoxes of Discounting
by Joseph H. Guth
Executive Summary
Background Paper

*Background Paper No. 13:
The Precautionary Principle in Environmental Decision-Making*
by Carolyn Raffensperger
Executive Summary
Background Paper

Background Paper No. 14: Models for Protecting the Environment for Future Generations
by the Science and Environmental Health Network & the Harvard Law School International Human Rights Clinic