

What is SSRN?

Social Science Research Network (SSRN) is devoted to the rapid worldwide distribution of research facilitating communication among authors and their readers. SSRN's vision is to create a way for scholars to share and distribute their research worldwide long before their papers work through the journal refereeing and publication process.

SSRN is composed of a number of specialized research networks including the Legal Scholarship Network (LSN) which allows authors to upload papers without charge. Any paper an author uploads to SSRN is downloadable for free, worldwide.

- 100,000 authors have uploaded their papers and abstracts to SSRN, and users have downloaded nearly 16 million full text documents (currently running at approximately 4 million downloads per year).

How SSRN works:

SSRN allows authors to have individual pages hosting just their own work and it also allows institutions to have a page reflecting the work of the entire academy.

- Vermont Law School has created several e-journals within SSRN and one Research Paper Series:
 - 1) Natural Resources Law & Policy (VLS Editors: Jason Czarnezki or Marc Mihaly)
 - 2) Energy Law & Policy (VLS Editor: Donald Kries)
 - 3) Climate Change Law & Policy (VLS Editor: Patrick Parenteau)
 - 4) International Environmental Law (VLS Editor: Tseming Yang)
 - 5) Vermont Law School Legal Studies Research Paper Series (VLS Editor: Oliver Goodenough)

Vermont Law School Legal Studies Research Paper Series:

The easiest way to get your work into the Research Paper Series and your author page is to contact Heidi Conner x1440 or Hconner@vermontlaw.edu in the library.

- She can submit to the e-journal and your author page.
- Heidi cannot make changes to or even access your author page profile but your articles will be sent to that page when Heidi submits to the Research Paper Series.
- For each article, you will need to prepare and submit an abstract.
- You may choose to suggest keywords based on the probable interest of your selected audience.
- You may choose to tell Heidi which e-journals you would like your work submitted.
- Do not submit articles pulled from HeinOnline or any other electronic database without first consulting Heidi for approval. In many cases this act is a violation of the library's licensing agreement.

- New material to the VLS Legal Studies Research Paper Series is also sent out in emails on a regular basis.
- As a VLS faculty member you should automatically be receiving these emails but if you are not, please contact Jared Wellman.

Accessing or Setting up Your Account:

- You can access your author account by doing the following:
- Go to <http://hq.ssrn.com>
- Enter your e-mail address in the Login box, leave the password field blank and click on Submit.
- It will tell you that your e-mail address is not in the system – please click on Join SSRN.
- Here you will see a registration form. Please fill in all the required fields and click on Submit.
- Your user id and password will be emailed to your email account.
- You can go to <http://hq.ssrn.com> and enter your username and password. Click on Submit to login into the system.
- When you login, you will be able to select the Legal Scholarship Network. SSRN will reply by e-mail letting you know when you can access the networks.
- Once your request to join a SSRN network has been approved, then you can return to <http://hq.ssrn.com> and view your account. Please make sure to click on the affiliations tab and affiliate yourself with Vermont Law School. Once you are registered you can go to SSRN's Legal Scholarship Network and subscribe to other Subject Matter eJournals.
