the country and the world; visit food and agricultural law and policy classes we'll be offering in summer 2021. The annual legislature in mid-February.

► Senior Legal Fellow Fran Miller was lead author of the brief during InTents: The Farmers Market Conference 2021.

► Professor Kruszewski also presented a deep-dive into our Food and Agriculture Clinic Director Sophia Kruszewski joined a panel on payment for increase access to healthy food during "Innovations in State Policy and Implications for the Pandemic: Addressing the Silent Crises in Public Health and Food Security Through Society; watch a recording.

► Along with Professor Jonathan Rosenbloom, Professor Beyranevand presented "Beyond Designed to reduce toxins in baby food."

► Director Laurie Beyranevand co-authored an op-ed in Societal Harms of Extreme Farmed Animal Law: Parallels and Synergies, and catch up on recent lectures, including Associate Dean Juan Perea of Loyola University Chicago, Iris Figueroa of Farmworker Justice, and advocates from the Nonhuman Rights Project founder and director.

The next installment in Vermont Law School's Embedded Racism in the Law Seminar will begin this August. Join Our Team!

In consultation with their Advisory Committee members, our students developed a definition of Access Models. Learn more and register.

Visit our website for more information about the Vermont Law School Food Law and Policy Clinic (with Emily Broad Leib of Food Safety and Quality).